Highlights of Volunteer Program at: Kei-Ai Los Angeles Healthcare Center

In 2016, KEIRO collaborated with Kizuna, a youth leadership organization, to bring community high school students into the facility as part of the 'Service Learning Project'. Students and residents folded cranes that were taken to Manzanar Relocation Center, a WWII concentration camp where people of Japanese descent were incarcerated. (Pictured below)

Music therapy is a great way to engage residents at all levels of functioning. KEIRO reached out to young musicians, Akirin Au and Jadon Tse to put on a concert for the residents. (Pictured above)

Highlights of Volunteer Program at: Kei-Ai South Bay Healthcare Center

Community Girl Scout, Marley Uyemura, reached out to KEIRO to help educate her peers on how to improve their communication skills with older adults, thus bringing in several youth into the facility for highly impactful social interaction for the residents. (Pictured below)

In 2016, KEIRO continued to provide community outreach to organizations such as Gardena Valley Baptist Church, which has a both a Taiko Group (Japanese drumming) and Hula Group. They were eager to perform for the residents at Kei-Ai South Bay Healthcare Center. And provide such cultural activities. (Pictured above)

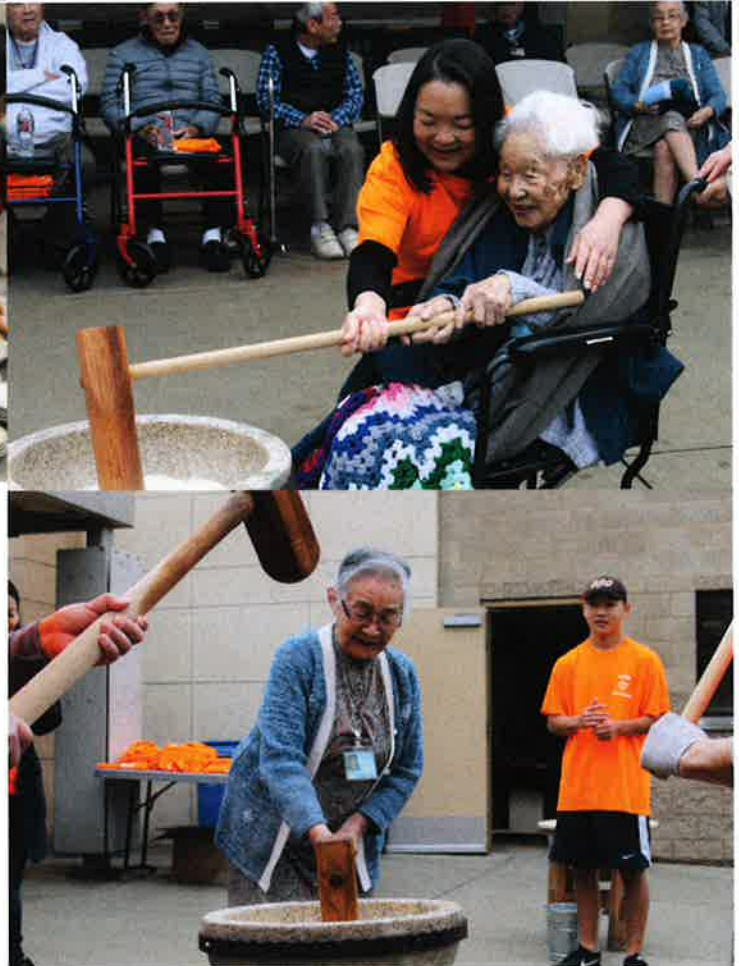

Highlights of Volunteer Program at: Sakura Intermediate Care Facility

Mochitsuki is a significant holiday that rings in the New Year for the Japanese and Japanese American Community. KEIRO is fortunate to work with Orange County Optimists to host this highly anticipated cultural event for the residents. (Pictured below)

Kasa No Kai is a dedicated group of primarily Japanese-speaking volunteers who have been running the Coffee Shop for over 10 years. In 2016 they continue to operate every Friday and Saturday and serve Japanese tea, coffee, and snacks including homemade Japanese pastries. (Pictured above)

Highlights of Volunteer Program at: Keiro Retirement Home (soon to be Sakura Gardens)

As part of KEIRO's program to support residents, KEIRO Volunteers offered 3 'Introduction to iPad' courses for the residents at the retirement home. Volunteers taught residents how to use iPads to stay connected with their friends and family.

Nisei Week is an annual festival celebrating Japanese American culture and history in Little Tokyo that started during the depression. This year KEIRO worked with the Nisei Week Queen and Princesses to come and visit the retirement home residents, many whom attend the annual Nisei Week parade and Odori dancing (traditional Japanese dancing). 2016 Volunteer Brunch

In June, KEIRO organized the annual Volunteer Brunch on behalf of the Facility Operators. Almanzor Court provided a great venue for this annual brunch, which recognizes the dedication and support that the hundreds of volunteers provide to the residents of the facilities.

While the Volunteer Brunch seeks to recognize the efforts of the volunteers, it also provided Facility Operators with a stage to engage and converse with the hundreds of volunteers in attendance.

Volunteer Retention

As the data in the 2016 Facility Volunteer Report shows, the facility volunteers tend to be on the older side. Realizing that many volunteers travel great distances to volunteer, KEIRO offered an AARP Driver Safety Course. This 2 day course provided volunteers with tips on how they can stay safe while driving to and from the facilities.

In 2017, KEIRO will continue to find new ways to engage facility volunteers outside of their normal volunteer responsibilities. We believe that volunteers who are happy, healthy and most importantly, appreciated, will in turn provide a high quality of support for the residents and facilities.
